Intercultural communication: More than flags and festivals
One day workshop for teachers K-12

What is it?
Educational Services, Macquarie Park and the Learning and Leadership Directorate are offering 6.5 hours of registered professional learning, designed to support teachers in exploring intercultural understanding.

Intercultural understanding isn't just about flags and festivals, it's about viewing culture as something unique in each of us, a lens through which we each interact with the world differently. Teachers will explore the explicit teaching of intercultural understanding, and develop and share their own resources.

The day will lead participants through a series of activities which aim to build an understanding of:
- personal culture and recognised models of culture
- the learning across the curriculum areas in the new NSW K-10 syllabuses
- resources and activities for classroom use to support students in developing intercultural communications skills.

After the workshop, participants edit an existing unit of work, reviewing/modifying content through an intercultural understanding lens, and then share their unit with colleagues.

Who is it for?
Interested teachers K-12.

When is it?
- Tuesday, 10 March at Tradewynds (Nirimba)
- Thursday, 12 March at Henry Parkes (Whalan)
- Thursday, 19 March at Hornsby RSL

(Teachers attend one day only.)

How much is it?
There is no cost to attend the workshop.

Schools are required to cover relief for participating teachers.

Registration
Register through MyPL@Edu.
10.03.15  Event ID 100932
12.03.15  Event ID 100933
19.03.15  Event ID 100934

Enquiries to:
Elisabeth Robertson
Curriculum Advisor
Educational Services, Macquarie Park
02 9208 7622
elisabeth.robertson@det.nsw.edu.au